Hey KRASH Headz. Welcome to October! Well, it's not really October yet 'cause in magazine-land October issues usually come out some time in September. Totally weird, but THANK GOD they do, 'cause if it was October already you would have missed the premiere of Ben 10 Omniverse @6pm on Friday, September 28. You also would have missed Diary of a Wimpy Kid: Dog Days which comes out on September 20. PHEW! This issue we look at the coolest new games, try a brand-new skate trick, look at the best new movies, take the Renault Alpine super car for a test drive, give away some great prizes (including a Sony Vaio laptop computer!) and heaps, heaps more. Oh, and don't forget the awesome puzzles and jokes we throw at you every month. Don't forget we have the coolest komix in the universe too, Spider-Man and The Avengers! CYA KRASH Heads.

GET THE GANG TOGETHER AND SHARE
THESE STRANGE STORIES.SUPER SIZED SKATEBOARD

A confectionary company in the United Kingdom have created a super sized skateboard which measures over six metres long, over two metres wide and weighing two and a half tonnes. A team of six engineers spent 300 hours to complete the skateboard which can hold 30 children at one time. Along with raising awareness for skateboarding to be included in future Olympics, the initiative was also part of a competition. Schoolchildren were encouraged to submit a design of the board with the winner being 10-year-old, Kate Emslex from Worcester. The sweet brand, Mega Mouth, have moved the sporting creation to a permanent home at the largest indoor skate park in Britain. Matty Carlisle, an under 14 skateboarding champ confessed "This is the most awesome board I've ever seen and I think it's fantastic that so many kids are keen to see skateboarders compete on such a grand stage." We agree!

POISON PIZZAS BANNED

Health officials in Switzerland have banned a series of pizzas featuring toppings consisting of spiders, scorpions and snakes. According to chef, Ismail Ertekin, tiny amounts of poisons sourced from homeopathic remedies were used at his Zurich based restaurant. Ertekin defended his products by insisting "Preservatives in foods are much more damaging than my poison pizzas...They were really popular, especially with people who have a phobia of spiders or snakes. They used the pizza as a way to get over their fears."

However, health officials investigated the 'poison pizzas' and demanded they be removed from the menu. Even though the pizzas contained very little poison, Ferdinand Uehli, an Environmental Health Officer said "Medicinal products are not food stuffs and are not allowed to be an ingredient in food."

Ertekin had also been known to serve pizzas topped with gold flakes!

LEATHERED UP FERRARI

A passionate and wealthy car owner has had his two hundred thousand dollar Ferrari F430 covered in leather. Car customising company, Dartz, were hired by the French Riviera resident to complete the car in a slick, black leather finish. Recently, the company made the three gold-plated Dartz Aladeen Edition Prombons for Sacha Baron Cohen's film The Dictator. Leonard Yankelovich, head of Dartz confirmed "One of our very rich customers from the Cote d'Azur wanted a leather exterior and knew we could deliver... He was more than happy when he picked it up." Three Dartz staff spent 16 working days to complete the customisation. It has been confirmed that the leather is real and not vinyl but is remains unknown just how much the client paid for the specialised job.

ROLLERMAN'S RISKY RIDE

A daredevil in France has mastered a mountain road featuring 99 hairpin turns on a specially made roller suit. Jean-Yves Blondeau calls himself 'Rollerman' and completed the stunt in Tianmen Mountain in Zhangjiajie, in south China's Hunan province. Rollerman's custom made suit includes 31 rollerblade-like wheels on the torso, back and other major joints which enable him to steer his body in different positions at speeds of up to 112 kilometres per hour. In just 19 minutes and 34 seconds, Mr Blondeau sped down the 10.77 kilometre torturous mountain road and specially installed metal track. Originally, Blondeau designed the superhero-type outfit as part of a graduation project at an industrial design school, however, has since developed 20 advancements ranging from basic kneepads with rollers to the sophisticated Rollerman full body suit.

MINI MONET MAKING MILLIONS

Kieron Williamson, a nine-year-old from Norfolk in England, is set to become a millionaire after selling his latest collection of 24 paintings for over $375,000. In just 15 minutes, phone and internet buyers from all over the world had snapped up the talented youngster's landscape pictures. Williamson started painting in 2008 and has quickly transformed into an international sensation with artworks selling for tens of thousands of dollars. The most recently purchased pictures included two landscapes at around $52,000 each and small pastels at almost $10,000 each. The young artist's success has enabled his family to move from a rented apartment into a grand home in the village of Ludham in the Norfolk Broads. It has been confirmed that Williamson will not have full access to his earnings until he turns 18 with his mother stating "His paintings are continuing to progress and improve - but he is still a normal boy... He makes sure that he has time for all the other things he enjoys."

WELCOME TO WOOFSTOCK

A recent festival in Toronto, Canada, saw over 300,000 dog lovers and their pets celebrating the bond between man and best friend. The Woofstock Festival was a two day event which has expanded from a local occurrence into the largest of its kind. Organiser, Marlene Cook, claimed "We started small in 2003 in the Distillery District...I wanted to do an event that honoured household dogs. I didn't realise how popular it would become. It just took off." The festival is now in its ninth year running and features a doggie fashion and talent show as well as an award for the best dressed pooch. This year, a Yorkshire terrier named Remy, scored the best dressed accolade for his biker outfit complete with a black leather jacket and glasses.

ORANG-UTANS AND iPADS

A zoo in Florida is using iPads to communicate between keepers and orang-utans. Zookeeper, Linda Jacobs, from Jungle Island Zoo in Miami claimed the orang-utans "have all the intelligence they need to communicate with us...But what they don't have is developed vocal chords and voiceboxes. This gives them a voice." It is suspected the animals will eventually use the technology to tell zookeepers what they want to eat each day. Jacobs added "Some of them like carrots more than they like beets. I don't want to eat the same thing every day that someone else picks for me. I want them to have a choice over their lunches." Jungle Island Zoo hopes the tech-friendly apes will also be able to social network with zoo visitors and allow people to communicate with the orang-utans via interactive screens that sync with the iPads.

SUPERHUMAN SIGHT SPOTTED

A woman with 'superhuman' sight has been identified and can supposedly see 99 million more colours than the average person. According to the report, the woman, who can see an incredible range and depth of hues, is the first so-called 'tetrachromat' to be discovered in Britain. Neuroscientist at Newcastle University, Gabriele Jordan, alleges the condition does not affect men and that there may be more super sighted women out there. Jordan said "Unfortunately, she cannot describe how her colour vision compares with ours any more than we can tell a colour-blind person what red looks like to us." Human vision is based on eye cells called cones whereas tetrachromats possess four types instead of three. Jordan also added that the super sight may never be used at full capacity with tetrachromats "may be trapped in a world tailored to creatures with lesser powers."

CAR-HENGE

A replica of popular landmark, Stonehenge, made entirely from scrap cars has been unveiled by a self-taught artist named Tommy Gun. The 'car-henge' sculpture features 18 scrap cars and took three months to create. Furthermore, it measures five metres tall, weighs 36 tonne and can withstand a Force 12 hurricane. The installation of 'car-henge' required cranes to its temporary site on London's Southbank. Mr Gun, who has a passion for large sculptures made from machine parts, said "The project has been the most amazing challenge...It is made entirely from old car parts, which taps into my own childhood growing up on a farm where I used to love building and creating things with pieces of discarded machinery." The sculpture was commissioned by car company, Skoda, to promote their new Citigo car.

WORLD'S LONGEST BURP

Litres of sugary soft drink were recently consumed as participants prepared for the first World Burping Championship in New York. Pizza chef, Tim Janus, was the proud winner of the competition when he finished a 18.1 second long belch after drinking almost four litres of Diet Coca Cola and Mountain Dew. Janus revealed "I was just trying to condense all the air in my stomach and bring it to the surface...You just have to force every last bit of air up. It's beautiful, really." Representative of the World Burping Foundation, Sebastian Rothschild, described the purpose of the event as aiming to "restore burping to a place of respectability in Western culture, and to remove the stigma that has attached itself to this practice during the past millennium."

Bad to the

Perfectly at home playing the heel, Dolph Ziggler says he doesn't have to act – he really is that nasty.

KRASH: What made you want to be in the WWE ring?

Ziggler: When I was five years old I went to my first ever WWE live event and I had a blast. I told my dad that I wanted to start wrestling right away. Two months later I started wrestling, so I've been wrestling my whole life. I feel like I'm a born entertainer and I love to go out there and put on a great show and there's nowhere better to do that than the WWE.

KRASH: How long did it take to get a crack in WWE?

Ziggler: Because I had trained my whole life in wrestling, and done so well in college, I was lucky enough to get a tryout without training in other promotions. I went straight to WWE developmental territory for about about six months to a year before I was called up to the main roster.

KRASH: What kinda you like at high school?

Ziggler: I was a good student and I tried to play all sports. I was on the student council and I was one of the news anchors for our home room news show. I loved being involved in a lot of different things – athletics as well as entertainment.

KRASH: What WWE moment would you most like to relive?

Ziggler: I was actually given the World Heavyweight Championship once but I'd like to relive that in my own way full-time so I have a Money in the Bank contract I can cash in how I want to and when I want to.

KRASH: Is the manner your character is known as Mr. Perfect true?

Ziggler: The funny thing is my character is based on a toned-down version of my real-life self. I do happen to have blonde hair like Mr. Perfect, and I happen to be really good at my job like Mr. Perfect, so I'll take those compliments. But I'm such an egomaniac that I want to do everything better than anybody else. And if I went out there to become a lesser version of Mr. Perfect I wouldn't be doing myself any justice. I don't want to be the next Mr. Perfect, I want to be the first Dolph Ziggler.

KRASH: How are you (about being a heel) feeling these days?

Ziggler: I prefer the chance to be myself the most and myself is a bad guy. My whole life I've been this way. It's entertaining but it rubs a lot of people the wrong way. If you're good at your job though, it doesn't matter

Bone

KRASH: You have two younger brothers, did you use them a hard time?

Ziggler: Usually we would team up and give other people a hard time. One of my brothers, Briley Pierre, actually happens to be in the WWE development system right now. Much like myself, he went to college first. That was the deal I made with myself that I went to college first, got a degree, and then I could go pursue my dream. He's got two degrees and he's written books and movies too.

KRASH: Well did you study at college?

Ziggler: Political Science. My other love, besides entertainment, is law. I wanted to be a courtroom lawyer, I was on my way to law school when I got the call from WWE that I would have a trial with Plant. I'm still really interested in law but my favourite thing is going out there every night and performing for the WWE Universe.

KRASH: Who does you're the man behind WWE Universe?

Ziggler: Yes, it's my favourite thing to do right now, besides counting the days till I cash in that World Heavyweight Championship contract. It's a clip show where we post people on YouTube being goofy, falling down and doing other funny stuff. I write the show and I host it. I enjoy writing jokes and I write a script that's got some pretty funny lines. If you go to my Twitter page I put the link up there so go check out my most recent show.

KRASH: What do you like to do when you get a day off?

Ziggler: I like to sit at home by my pool (in Phoenix, Arizona) and read a book.

WHAT: Diary of a Wimpy Kid Dog Days

WHO: Zachary Gordon, Steve Zahn, Robert Capone, Drew Rossick and Grayson Russell

WHEN: When: 29 Sept. 2012.

ABOUT:

During his summer vacation, everyone's favourite "Wimpy Kid" Greg Heffley hatches a plan to pretend he has a job at a fancy country club - which fails to keep him away from the season's dog days, including embarrassing encounters at a public pool and a camping trip that goes terribly wrong!

CHARACTER CATCH UP

GREG HEFFLEY

The main character in the Diary of a Wimpy Kid book and film series. Greg is an outcast who is always worried about his popularity level and personal image. This "Wimpy Kid" loves video games and cartoons. Greg constantly hatches grand plans in the hope to impress girls, make money and increase his popularity but they often fail miserably. Greg is an awkward guy that we can't help but like!

RODRICK HEFFLEY

As older brother to Greg and Manny Heffley, Rodrick plays a large part in the Diary of a Wimpy Kid series. Rodrick is passionate about music which he spends more time on than schoolwork and often enlists his parents to complete his homework. Although Rodrick is not the smartest member of the Heffley family, he does have skills in manipulating people.

MANNY HEFFLEY

Manny, the youngest member in the Heffley family is around four years old. To Greg, his younger brother is constantly spoiled by their parents. Manny tends to avoid getting into trouble by acting cute or crying. But, hey, he's just a toddler!

FRANK HEFFLEY

Frank is the father of Greg, Rodrick and Manny Heffley and husband of Susan Heffley. As the main father figure in the series, Frank is hard working, strict, and sometimes argumentative. Possessing a few similar traits as Greg, Frank can be shallow at times, but, he always has the family's best interests at heart.

SUSAN HEFFLEY

As a mother of three young boys and married to Frank Heffley, Susan has her hands full. Susan is a caring and loving mother who constantly embarrasses her oldest sons, Greg and Rodrick, with her relaxed attitude. Susan is always fighting to bring the family closer together but her efforts usually have disastrous results!

ROWLEY JEFFERSON

The best friend of Greg Heffley and another major character in the Diary of a Wimpy Kid stories.

Sometimes Rowley is considered the anti-hero of the series even though he is Greg's best mate. Rowley is quite immature and his constant silly behaviour gets Greg into trouble all the time!

CHIRAG GUPTA

An Indian-American friend of Greg Heffley who appears in the film series a little more than the novels. Chirag is often on the receiving end of a practical joke set up by Greg but is always quick to forgive and forget.

FREGLEY

Fregley is a bit of a nerd and one of the most unpopular kids at Greg's school. Fregley consistently tries to be friends with Greg and the other characters in the series. So, at least he tries!

HEATHER HILLS

In Diary of a Wimpy Kid: Dog Days, Heather works as a lifeguard at the local pool. Greg has a crush on Heather and always tries to impress her; however, Heather doesn't tend to pay him any attention.

HOLLY HILLS

Holly is the younger sister of Heather Hills. According to Greg, Holly is the fourth cutest girl in his grade at school. Holly has been known to have a bit of a crush on Rowley despite Greg's flirting efforts.

HEATHER HILLS

Patty is a bit of a nerd and a teacher's pet. She wears big glasses and pigtails and has been the reason Greg has failed various school tests. Patty is very competitive and super smart.

The iPad has been totally ruling the tablet world over the last few years and it's starting to get some really cool games that are as good as what you find on the 3DS and Vita. However, Microsoft - the dudes who make the Xbox - are going to try and take over with a tablet called Surface. It will run on the new operating system Windows 8 and should be able to play both PC games, Xbox Live Arcade games and games that you see on the iPhone and iPad. Surface is expected to be released at the end of October and we'll let you know more before then.

LITTLEBIGPLANET

■ FOR THE VITA

When you think of great gaming heroes, you probably think of guys like Mario, Ben 10, Spyro the Dragon and Master Chief. You probably don't think of dude made out of a sack - it's a bit weird isn't it? But Sackboy, the star of LittleBigPlanet is actually a bit of a legend in the platforming world. His sidescrolling adventures on the PS3 used real world physics like weight and momentum to solve the level puzzles. They also let you play with three friends at the same time and featured wicked graphics. Coolest of all, however, was the level editor that allowed you to construct, with amazing detail, your own levels to share across the Net. All of these awesome features make it across to the Vita version, including the great graphics. Plus, they've added all these new ways to interact with the world using the touchscreen and rear touchpad to help you get past the puzzles and to make it more fun to build worlds. One of the best games on Vita!

NEW ART ACADEMY

■ 3DS

If you're anything like poor old GameSta, you can hardly draw a stick figure man standing on a surfboard, let alone a beautiful wave and sandy beach filled with playing kids and swaying palms. But even if you do have some skills with a pencil or paintbrush, you could still find a lot to like in this game.

An update of the Art Academy title that released on the DS, it includes a host of training exercises designed to teach you how to bring art to life. There are 30 new lessons, ranging from beginner stuff to advanced craziness, that take you step by step through the process of creating art. Using the touchscreen to draw, paint or construct your pictures works a treat and there are a large range of tools and colours available, which have been expanded in this game. Plus, you can show off any of the pieces you create to friends over the Net. It's a pretty cool idea and well worth checking out if you fancy yourself as a bit of an artist.

Games aren't much use without cool technology to help play them: the future is now!

TECH 1

Aftershockz Sport

We never thought we would see the day when earphones didn't actually use your ears, but believe it or not, that's exactly what the Aftershockz Sport headphones do. They sit on the spot in front of your ears and use vibrations to send the sound directly into your inner ear. The idea is that you can listen to music while you are jogging and riding your bike and still hear if cars or people are coming because nothing is blocking your ears. We've tested it out, and the sound - especially the bass - is actually really impressive. However, we're not about to go jogging. Instead we use it when we play our 3DS or Vita so that we can still hear the TV, or the bus coming. Cool, hey?

Samsung's New TVs

There is no point playing today's amazing console games on stupid little old TVs. You want to have something massive, with a really sweet screen and 3D functionality. This new TV from Samsung is one of the coolest we have seen. It's a whopping 60" big, which is 152cm - you're probably not even that tall! It also has those cool bonus features: you can plug a hard-drive in to record shows, plus pause and rewind live TV! You can control it using your voice or movements (just like Kinect) and it connects to the internet so you can check out the latest game trailers or just browse YouTube looking for funny videos. Finally it has amazing 3D, great for those PS3 games. Start begging your mum now!

GeForce GTX 680 Graphics

If your dad is thinking about improving your PC at all, you have to get him onto this new graphics card. This is like the coolest, fastest and most powerful way to bring video game graphics to life. It does things like prevent yucky lines appearing in the visuals, and automatically adjusts its power based on the game you are playing. It's good enough to provide 3D gaming, too, and also help out with other bits of a game like physics (which is things like environment destruction). In fact it is so awesome, you can plug four screens into your PC and it can show the game over all of them at once - now that would be a cool way to play a racing game, hey!

The best games you can download and play right now.

Downloadable Games (the DLGs) usually cost between $1 and $20.

Amazing Alex

This clever little puzzle title would make Angry Birds owners have just minutes less time online on the off-chance that the stars try help Alex set up those contraptions. It's an uncomplicated design: You manipulate things you don't see a hint to get things to go (like a bomb, for good effect) through on the way and knock down obstacles. It's fun, but the real reason to get this little game is that it's a great way to spend time learning the way.

Retro/Grade

This cool game puts you in the pilot's seat of a rocket ship who must blast his way through stacks of enemies, while collecting upgrades on the way to boost your arsenal. It plays just like old-school side-scrolling shooters from the eighties and even has sound effects and music to match. Speaking of music, what sets this game apart is you must fight in time with the music, matching your actions to the beat. It's terribly odd, but very cool, too.

GET IT IN DOWN

Rock Band: Blitz

If you ever played the big console Rock Band games, or even Guitar Hero, you'll know what to expect here. Notes for up to five different instruments stream across the screen and you need to tap the right button at the right time to bring the songs to life. This time, however, there is no fake instrument; you just tap buttons on the controller at the right time. This is still a lot of fun and there are 25 new songs to enjoy.

Dust: An Elysian Tail

This is an adorable action-adventure game. It was initially a side-by-side indie. It is a 2D action-RPG platformer. So you move sideways while the screen pulls off crazy combos on big enemies and pulsating chests, but there are also aspects to think and lots of new things to discover in our method. It is just fun and extremely good looking, making it one of the best downloadable games of the year.

THE BIG QUESTION

WE TACKLE THE BIG QUESTIONS IN GAMING.

SHOULD YOU FINISH THE GAMES YOU START?

We heard something that was very interesting the other day. A developer told us that they track how long people play games and only 20% of people actually play all the way through to the end. How crazy is that? That is only one in five dudes that see the story all the way to the end, or play the last big bad boss battle or solve the last puzzle. It makes you wonder if it is worth playing games all the way to the end.

There are obviously games that don't have a real end to them. Fighting games, racers and sport titles, for example, are all about just playing for fun and don't have any real end to reach. Minigame titles and party favourites like Just Dance 4 aren't exactly big on their endings either - you just turn them on and play for a while and then switch over to the next title. But not all games are like this.

Nowadays, most games feature full stories to enjoy. You'll meet a range of characters and follow them on their journey as they get past hard puzzles, battle challenging enemies and discover cool parts of the world. Sometimes it is just text to read, but more and more we are seeing proper voiced heroes and cutscenes that feel like movies, both of which help to tell a tale that has an ending you can reach and enjoy.

It is definitely worth finishing games like this. Most developers make the endings the biggest and best part of the game. Not only do you get to learn what happens to the characters, but you usually have all the items, weapons and spells in your arsenal to take on one last

DID YOU KNOW?

There is no set length for a video game. The standard single player will go for about 8 to 12 hours, but some RPGs can go for 50 or even 100 hours!

massive challenge. A great ending can stay with you for years. Plus, what if there is a sequel - you'll start to play it and you won't know the full story from the last game.

So you should be the one in the five that finishes their games KRASH Heads - it's totally worth it!

FRESHPIGS

We analyse the first screenshots

announced games

GRID 2 PS3, 360, PC

Finally, after four long years, legendary racing experts Codemasters have announced a sequel to their race series GRID. As with the original, the game focuses on super fast cars, really close races and big crashes across a range of classes and locations. In this screenshot you can see an off-road track, with a driver sliding into the corner: don't the graphics look great! Sadly Australia will not be part of the game, but we're promised a range of tracks across three continents - we cannot wait to hear more.

F1 RACE STARS PS3, 360, PC

In more racing game news, the fantastic Formula 1 world championship is getting a spin-off game that closely resembles Mario Kart. As you can see in this screenshot, stars like Mark Webber and Fernando Alonso have been shrunk down onto little karts, although they still handle kind of realistically. As you can also see, the track design is completely out there and it looks like we can expect crazy loops and death defying stunts. Four-player splitscreen has been confirmed, and there will be power-ups to collect as well.

LEGO LORD OF THE RINGS ALL FORMATS

Yes another legendary movie trilogy is getting turned into a Lego platform adventure game, which is awesome news for us! There are a couple of interesting changes to the formula: there is less slapstick humour this time, with actual voice work from the movies used to help tell the story. Other than that, however, it seems like the same fun experience that we are used to. In this shot you can see one of the most famous scenes from the first film, as the fellowship battle a giant Cave Troll in the mines of Moria. Looks challenging!

THE HIP HOP DANCE EXPERIENCE 360, Wii

After their success with the Michael Jackson Experience and the Black Eyed Peas Experience, developer Ubisoft is going for a whole genre with its next dance game. As the title suggests, the focus is all on Hip Hop, with artists like Snoop Dogg, Nelly and LMFAO part of the 40 songs on offer. As you can see in this shot, there are multiplayer modes to enjoy, and the dance moves aren't like other games, but specifically designed to match the beats found in the genre. It's going to be tight, ya'll.

FORTNITE NOT YET ANNOUNCED

This is one strange, but very interesting game. You are a survivor in a ruined world that is filled with violent creatures. Your job is to go out scavenging for bits of stuff in the world with other players, that you then use to build your fort. You can see someone doing just that in this screenshot, even as creatures attack. While exploring and surviving against waves of these varied enemies is part of the fun, it's the construction of your fort which sounds the coolest. You're totally free to think up and try any whacky designs you can imagine - sounds like fun.

HAWKEN PC

Few things are as awesome as two giant machines going to war, which is one of the reasons why we love Hawken so much. This is a Mech game, where you are the pilot of one of these human-shaped tanks able to dash, sidestep, jump high into the air and spin 180-degrees. They're big and heavy, but this game has managed to keep the combat super fast and addictive. You can see two dudes going at it here, using their customisable weapons and upgrades. Also check out the detailed world you fight in - this is one good looking game.

Madagascar 3: The Video Game

Format: PS3, 360, Wii, 3DS

Release: Out Now

Big movies deserve big games - that's an unbreakable rule, right? Like taking your dad's car for a drive when he is asleep. So it should be no surprise to you super smart Krash Heads that one of the biggest animated films of the year, Madagascar 3: Europe's Most Wanted, is getting its very own video game. Especially considering how well the new adventures of everybody's favourite herd of hilariously silly animals - where they find themselves as part of a circus and travelling to awesome locations all around Europe - lend themselves to gaming.

When you first load up the game, you are presented with three different ways to play. You can either get stuck into the story mode, take on individual missions, or

• have some fun with the circus-themed minigames.

• In the story mode, you'll be greeted by lots of funny dialogue and performances from all the stars of the movie. It's pretty entertaining, we must say, although the story is kind of basic compared to the movie itself. However, when it is time to play you are asked to explore through a 3D world in order to find objects that are need to help the hero's circus succeed so that they can make their way back to their home. It's similar platforming that you'd know from many adventure

• titles - especially those from other film games like Ice Age - as you navigate past the challenges placed in your way.

• Each hero has different abilities and special moves you will need to utilise and you can either switch between them with a tap of a button, or a friend can play with you. As usual, playing with a friend is awesome. It's also cool that you have to use your new circus skills - like walking on tightropes and being shot out of cannons to make your way through each mission. And when you're not completing specific tasks, you'll find minigame friends to see who is the best. For example, you might get shot out of a canon and have to guide your hero through hoops collecting things on the way. You may need to throw food out to people in the crowd as they greedily call out. Or use a trapeze and a trampoline to jump up collect things from crazy heights. You get the idea.

funny characters combined with the minigames helps keep the adventure rolling. We wonder what crazy antics these silly critters will get themselves into next time!

activities like collecting lots of things (which can also unlock new abilities) or escaping the evil rangers. In fact, there's no fighting in the game, which is a bit disappointing, instead you need to be careful not to get caught by the rangers in the world who want to lock you away.

Movie-based games aren't renowned for blowing away gamers with their amazing visuals and while this game and the characters look decent, it's not as amazing as the films. Still, it is nice that each of the stars has their own animations and it is cool how people in the street get scared when they see you coming.

Speaking of minigames, perhaps a lot of fans of the movie will head straight to the Circus minigames. These have you doing a range of crazy things and it can be good fun competing with your

If you're a fan of the Madagascar films, then this is definitely worth a look - especially if you have a friend to play with. Sometimes it can feel a little repetitive, but the

SKYLANDERS GET

One of our favourite games of 2011 was the innovative Spyro: Skylanders Adventure. This amazing game mixed platform adventuring with multiplayer battles and collectable toy figurines. The character figurines that you collect can be placed onto the portal of power peripheral, transporting them and all their experience into the game world. You can then use them in multiplayer battles or their special skills in the single player story to get access to new areas in the world. Each month we are going to highlight the coolest characters to collect within an element category so you know exactly what to look out for on the store shelves.

THIS MONTH'S ELEMENT = EARTH

NAME: Prism Break

CATCHPHRASE: The Beam is Supreme!

PRIMARY ATTACK: Energy Beams

SECONDARY ATTACK: Shard Summon

UPGRADES INCLUDE: Chained Refraction, Crystalline Armor, Focused Energy

AWESOME BECAUSE... Few things are as awesome as having jewels for arms - Prism Break couldn't be more Bling. But did you hear about how he got them? This rock golem was minding his own business underground one day when a cave-in buried him for 100-years. When he was finally rescued by miners, the weight of the rock had turned his arms into gems with powers. Good on him for using that power for good instead of evil.

TRIVIA. Prism Break shares features with two Ben 10 characters: Diamondhead and Chromastone.

TERRA

NAME: Terrafin

Primary Attack: Shark Punch

SECONDARY ATTACK:

Earth Swim

UPGRADES

INCLUDE: Brass

Bellyflop, Razorfin

AWESOME

BECAUSE... This Skylander could very well have the coolest moves in the whole game with Shark Punch and Mega Bellyflop. Sure to strike fear into all evildoers, this is one mean looking dude, although he started out as a lifeguard. He used to patrol the dirt ocean as other dirt Skylanders figurines can be collected as individual toys, or in single packs such as the Dragon Peak Adventure Pack, which is out now. The figurines work on any Portal of Power, so if you have a Wii and your friend has a PS3, you can still take your favourite characters over to their house to join in their adventure or just fight it out in multiplayer.

DOWN TO EARTH

NAME: Bash

CATCHPHRASE: Rock and Roll

PRIMARY ATTACK: Tail Swipe

SECONDARY ATTACK: Rock Roll

UPGRADES INCLUDE: Iron Tail, Mace of Destruction, Gaia Hammer

AWESOME BECAUSE... Simple name isn't it - Bash. Bet he can bash things good. Well, you'd be right! With his super thick outer armour he can roll into a ball and punch his way through most of the obstacles and enemies that get in his way. However, Bash has a sad story - he always wanted to fly like the other dragons, but he was too heavy. Instead he would roll into a ball and try to get so much speed he'd shoot into the air. It never worked, however, it did give him the skills he needed to become one of the great Skylanders. TRIVIA: He looks a bit like Gronckle from How to Train Your Dragon.

BASH

AFIN

sharks swam and snorkelled in the ground. Then, when a blast wave turned all the dirt to glass, he became a champion boxer. Ready for a third career, he is now a Skylander!

TRIVIA: His design is based on the Sand Sharks found in the first Ratchet & Clank game.

DINO-RANG

NAME: Dino-Rang

Catchphrase: Come 'Rang or Shine!

PRIMARY ATTACK: Stone Boomerangs

SECONDARY ATTACK: Boomerang Shield

Upgrades Include: Stonefist Traps, Dervish Shield, Volcanic Glass Boomerangs

AWESOME BECAUSE... Aussie! Aussie! Aussie! That's the first thing to pop into our mind when we see Dino-Rang. Not only he is a green dude with gold armour, but he uses Boomerangs to take on the world. He was suddenly zapped into the Skylands from a world far away (and possibly down under) and has since gone on walkabout in this strange land as he seeks out the fabled Twin Diamond Boomerangs, fighting bad dudes on the way. Just don't call him a Dragon or you will make him mad: he is clearly a dinosaur!

TRIVIA: His soul gem ability is a reference to the Legend of Zelda, a game series that also features a Boomerang.

Don't forget to check out next month, where we will be taking a look at the Tech element featuring such awesome new characters as Dragoon.

RUGBY LEAGUE LIVE 2

PS3, 360

So how is your NRL team going in 2012? Or is this another flake? Well the good news is, whether they did or they didn't, you'll be able to rewrite history in this latest video game. It has all the teams from all over the world including the representative sides, it's big name players, 37 massive stadiums and more big hits than a demolition derby.

Those who played the first Rugby League Live game will be happy to know that it is awesome. The Ant has really focused hard on fixing many of the problems fans had with that release. For starters, the graphics are much improved and stars like Ben Durrant look incredibly realistic. There are other nice touches too. The field time breakdowns for things like kicks, full back and ruck and most build up on the players. The result is an experience a lot more like the real thing, which is great.

They've also totally fixed up the career mode. Now it goes for ten years and you will need to manage your training schedule, develop new rookies and ensure you stay under the salary cap while getting awesome players like Billy Slater and Paul Gallen. We also like that you can easily change the difficulty, opting for a hard setting when you need to pull out plays, make the tightest type of tackles - like going low on rugby so he doesn't pull you off - and hope you don't get tackled, or an easier game, where you can just muck around and have fun.

But best of all, it plays just like the sport. You can throw flat passes to outside, bomb or kick field goals, tackle the legs or pin the arms and a lot more. You can even change your team's tactics on the fly. It's a much better Rugby League game as a result and if you're a fan, you should pick it up like it's a Junction Theory guitar.

Perhaps the coolest new feature is the Footy Factory. This is where you can create your own team and players - so you can put yourself in the game and pull off a big hit on Dave Taylor: awesome!

FIFA 13

ALL FORMATS

Each year in late September, the developers over at EA lace up their boots, don their jerseys and trundle out onto the field with their latest and greatest soccer experience. 2012 is no different and yet again we're super impressed by how good a job these guys do at bringing all aspects of the sport into one game. You've got local competitions - including the A-League - internationals, a full management mode, incredible online play where you can have two full teams of humans go at it and incredible detailed animations that bring the game to life. Each year there are big improvements and this year it is all about making the gameplay more realistic. You now have to turn and trap aerial passes and take more time to get control of the ball, which is just like real life. Also, your teammates now think two plays ahead - so not only does the closest player run into a gap to receive a pass, but the next guy, too. These are little things, but they make this huge game even bigger.

F1 2012

PS3, 360, PC

The V8 Supercars are awesome, and we love the World Rally Championship and the Sprint Cars too, but in the world of motorsport, nothing is more impressive than F1. These are the fastest cars and the best drivers in the world. This game does an excellent job of making you feel the thrill of this season's super tight championship - as it includes all the teams, drivers and tracks - including Austin legend Mark Webber. You can play through the full season - doing everything from the practice sessions, to qualifying for the big race and even interviews with the press - play multiplayer online or challenge against a friend - or just try to beat the fastest lap time on your favorite track.

The graphics are excellent. While the cars handle quite realistically, which can make things a little tough at first. But it's fun enough just being part of it, racing into the pits, crashing out or dodging broken down cars. Yes Crash Heads, it's time to burn rubber!

ROCKSMITH

360, PS3, PC

This could very well be the coolest piece of the press. On the surface, it looks like we are in a classic intro and food band game, as you'll notice as they start down the aisle. However, just down and you'll see it's not a city game, complete with my own of a game.

can't be anything. It's a real quote. That's right, you play a person, another quote into this game and then it teaches you how to fit the reference so that you can actually play the game. They really know what it's like to play most and interesting things. It's not like the same old thing - the person. The Black Box and those... and that you take an event where you have to play certain set form and you're excited to find out your performance in time. There are lots of options to look your choice.

Imagine your child's screaming, complaining that you're mean, that you're just punishing him. That can't be right, he's innocent and deserves a reward for a behavior that's both positive and constructive, right?

BEAT THE BEAT: RHYTHM PARADISE

This is also a mash-up genre, but it's quite a different experience that Rockwold. In fact, it is more like a WarcWarc ride, where you are presented with some truly whacky minigames that you need to pass by peering:

told you it was nuts and you'll certainly have a good laugh at some of

The movie is all electronic, but it is upbeat and fun, while the cute storybook visuals fit the action perfectly. It's just a shame they didn't do anything cool with the multiplayer modes! Still worth a look, not a bad last game for The Wii.

TEKKEN TAG TOURNAMENT 2

Everybody loves a bit of bit and whizz. It comes in two dishes: kicking and punching each other's heads in, four games in as good as Tekken. The Tag Tournament spin-off from the main series mixes up the action by allowing you to choose two fighters for each round. At any time you can tag out your fighter, giving them a breather and letting them earn back some health while the other guy or girl steps into the battle. This allows smart players to change up their moves by tagging in new fighters all of a sudden. Plus, you can start a combo in one fighter and finish it off as another or, if you time it right, you can have both fighters attacking at once. We also like how the level itself comes into the fight: you can punch your opponent through walls into saw areas of the world, or off ledges, and even keep the combo going. With a huge roster of over 50 characters, sweet graphics and a stack of modes, this is a fighting fan's dream.

DID YOU KNOW?

WORLD OF WARCRAFT: MISTS OF PANDARIA

PC

This mega-popular, end-of-the-world MMO of them all has just gotten bigger with a dodgy fourth expansion. Dubbed because of the playable race, the Pandaren, who look just like Kung Fu Pandas. They're from a new continent called Pandaria, which offers scores of new areas to explore and loads more quests to complete. It's possibly the most important addition to the game yet thanks to its battle locations filled with bosses - exactly what you'd expect from zones called Jade Forest, Valley of the Four Winds and Vale of Eternal Blossoms. They sound like mean's paradise! It's not just this beautiful land to explore, either: there are new new designs for a new Monk profession to master.

...it gets five levels to give your character through and all that fresh loot. Plenty of good reasons to get back into the game if you're an old fan. However if you're new to the MMO genre, you might prefer to try last month's release, Guild Wars 2, instead.

RENAULT

The Avatar Supercar

The Renault Alpine A110-50 is a homage to the late Renault Alpine A110 and was created to celebrate the Renault 50 year old last April/January, and for a Dark Knight-style reboot! This futuristic look might be slapped on many Renaults in future – if they're lucky!

The carbon fibre bodywork features a new blue shade which strips out the original Alpine Blue! The dope design is enhanced by half-domed LED lamps, and a 3D rear window (which provides engine views), while air intakes on each side provide gearbox cooling (right side) and engine cooling (left side). The bonnet is hinged at the front and the engine bay cover opens toward the back, while the doors are all show with a scissor motion!

You won't find the engine in the front or back, because the 3.5 litre 24 valve 400 Horsepower V6 comes stacked mid-rear! It breathes through the same carbon air intake used by the Renault Megane, but also uses a roof air intake to get air pronto to the engine! Optimised engine mapping makes sure there is constant horsepower at all speeds and transmission is a semi-automatic setup which uses a twin-plate clutch and is controlled using steering wheel paddles! A black box electronic unit sorts out engine management, gearbox control and data collection. All data can be humped out using Wintec software: engine speed, gears, car speed, throttle position, brake pressure – even blood pressure!

Underneath it all, is the same tube type chassis that the Megane race car uses, although the Alpine's has been modified and lightened! The roll cage has been lowered because of the shorty height while weight distribution is 47.2% over the front wheels. To help self service, there are onboard automatic jacks – just like in F1, they allow the wheels to be changed without the need for bricks!

At the front, a bumper generates low pressure for aerodynamic downforce, while at the rear a smooth rear wing guides air flow beneath the floor! The 21-inch wheels run on special road Michelin tyres and house six piston caliper brakes up front, four piston at rear. In order to provide the purest driving, driving aids like ABS and traction control are not fitted – so good luck chuck!

ALPINE

Upon entering the Alpine, you will notice the carbon-fibre cockpit, with black racing seats with embroidered badging, black harness belts and the occasional shade of blue. Although the dash is simple, the steering wheel has a booming colour screen with all the zooming info you need!

If the car does get made, it will probably be sold to Europe, and maybe China. We Aussies want one too!

CHRIS ROCK

We caught up with Chris Rock, voice of Marty the Zebra in Madagascar 3: Europe's Most Wanted to chat about the awesome new movie, out September 13!

PLATE: Chris Rock

PLAYS: Marty the Zebra in Madagascar 3: Europe's Most Wanted

KRASH: How would you describe the process of voicing an animated character?

CHRIS: It's different. It's similar to doing a read-through! The thing about voicing a character is that they almost pay you to overact, as they want the most exaggerated version of you. And then occasionally there are some scenes that really require emotion, which is when you are asked to turn it down. That's when the directors step in and help you out. And the other good thing is that you can come in to work looking like you want. It's a very liberating experience, and I like it a lot.

KRASH: How much did you improvise?

CHRIS: A lot! It's fun for me. I am encouraged to do it just to give different flavors of the line, and then they run with it; but I don't improvise to save anything, because the script is already great

KRASH: Can you remember a funny improvised moment that made it into the movie?

CHRIS: Yes, for instance the "Afro Circus" song I came up with. So, I do a little singing in Madagascar: Europe's Most Wanted...

KRASH: And what do you like about Marty the zebra?

CHRIS: I just like that my character accepts nothing and questions everything. He asks himself things like: "Why do I have to live in a zoo?" So, I like that he is not at all complacent.

KRASH: What does he go through in this third adventure?

CHRIS: With Marty it's always about the question: "Where do I belong?" He is a zebra – he is black and white... So, he is kind of always trying to figure out where he belongs. And what we always end up finding out is that he belongs with his friends. That is one of the messages of these movies.

KRASH: In Madagascar 3: Europe's Most Wanted the zoo animals join a travelling circus. What does that element add to it all?

CHRIS: It helps bring a lot of comedy and adds so much color to the movie.

KRASH: Did you go to the circus as a kid?

CHRIS: Yes, I did! When I was a little kid I thought I was going to be a clown. And I guess I am one...

KRASH: How would you compare Madagascar 3: Europe's Most Wanted with the previous two films of the series?

CHRIS: I think it's the best one. In the first two you are still explaining who these characters are, but now we have figured that out and can really go on an adventure. And it works! It's kind of a road comedy about a bunch of friends on the run from the law. It's almost like Thelma and Louise with animals!

Madagascar 3: Europe's Most Wanted is the most fun film of the series.

SHAME OF THE MONTH

As I was walking back to class from lunch, I found a rubber band in my pocket. The boy sitting in front of me was my arch enemy. I was really embarrassed because at lunch he had grabbed my jocks and pulled them up over my head and gave me a massive wedgie in front of the girls. Full of revenge I grabbed the big, thick mother of a piece of elastic and stretched it back across my forearm and aimed for his head. Letting loose it flew through the air towards his head until he bent over to pick up his pencil. My heart jumped as it whizzed over his head and smacked the teacher right on the bum. As the teacher yelped and said "who did that?!" everybody stared and pointed at me. I was shocked with embarrassment and my cheeks turned bright red.

I was at school camp and we were having free time. I was running up and down the corridor when suddenly some people knocked me down. They stole my pants and I was in the middle of the corridor in my undies. Then everyone went into the corridor because it was time for dinner. They all saw me in my undies trying to get my pants on and they all started laughing. I stayed at home for a week after that.

At my school I was doing fractions and suddenly I farted. But it wasn't a normal fart. It came out runny and I pooped myself. Someone said EWWWWW! What's that smell? Someone sitting next to me shouted Zayn pooped himself! I went to the canteen where my mum works and told her I had pooped myself and she laughed. I went and got some new undies and when I walked in everyone laughed. My face went red and I thought I would die of embarrassment. Such shame!

Last year all my class went out for PE except me and my friend coz we had to finish our homework. My friend turned on the radio and my favourite song started so I stood up on the table, took off all my clothes off except my undies, and started dancing. After a while I looked back and saw all my class was back and they started to laugh at me. I was so embarrassed. Please don't mention my name if u post this in ur mag!
